Dear Mr. Jianshi Yuan:

I am pleased to offer you conditional admission on probation to The Graduate School of Loyola University Chicago for the Computer Science MS program beginning the 2015 Fall Semester.

As a condition of your probationary status, you must receive a grade of B or higher in your first three classes. Failure to meet this condition may result in your being withdrawn from the program.

You must also submit all your official final transcript(s). Transcripts should be submitted in their original unopened envelope sealed by the institution. International documents may include a separate degree certificate, which should also be submitted in its original unopened envelope. Please note that registration for your second term at Loyola will be blocked until you submit your final transcript(s).

You must contact your Graduate Program Director, Dr. Andrew Harrington, at (312) 915-7982 or by e-mail at gpd@cs.luc.edu to plan your course of study and to make arrangements to register.

If you have applied for a Merit Award, you will receive notification of the outcome under separate cover from The Graduate School.

For your next steps and to confirm your acceptance, please return to your Applicant Status Page. If you have decided Loyola is not the right program for you or if you wish to request a deferral you can also share this information with us via the Applicant Status Page.

Feel free to call or e-mail your Graduate Program Director with any questions you may have regarding your plans to enroll at Loyola. We will offer whatever assistance we can to help you make a comfortable transition to graduate study with us. Congratulations and welcome to Loyola!

Sincerely,

Patricia Mooney-Melvin, PhD
Interim Dean, The Graduate School
Loyola University Chicago
